The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its fourth visit of the fiscal year to Appomattox County on Tuesday, February 11, 1975, at Liberty Baptist Church from noon until 6 p.m.

Blood donors will be needed to give blood for replacement to the University of Virginia Hospital at Charlottesville for Albert Reynolds, Sr. of Spout Spring who was critically burned on Monday of this week.

Make your plans now to get out and give a unit of your blood...it may save a life.

Federal Flood Insurance Available For Buckingham

Federal flood insurance became available January 14 for the County of Buckingham, according to Louis F. Lombardi, State Coordinator of flood insurance for the State Water Control Board. The coverage is subsidized 90% by the federal government.

The insurance provides emergency coverages of $35,000 for single-family residences and $10,000 for the contents. Tenants may also insure their home belongings.

Other structures such as business, industrial, agricultural, and governmental buildings can be insured for $10,000 with $10,000 coverage for the contents.

Residents may purchase the coverage from local property and casualty insurance agents, Lombardi explained. Insurance should be bought during the first 30 days of a community's or county's eligibility to avoid a 15-day waiting period thereafter, he added.

Virginia localities qualified to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program now total 160. The program is administered through the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development and coordinated in Virginia by the State Water Control Board.

Mobile Radars Heavily Increase Speeding Arrests

RICHMOND - State Police arrests for speeding alone during 1974 numbered 159, 642, or an increase of 58,047 over the 101,595 of 1973, Colonel H. W. Burgess, Superintendent of State Police, reported today.

Heavy increases of from 6,602 in November, 1973, to 19,315 in November, 1974, and from 6,333 to 14,820 for the two Decembers were obtained. Colonel Burgess said December's figure would no doubt have been higher had it not been for heavy snows in the southwest portion of the State which thinned traffic and lowered speeds.

He attributed the November and December increase to full use of the Department's mobile radars which number now in excess of 100. These are installed in police cruisers and can produce a reading while the car is in motion up to nearly half a mile. They are particularly useful, he said, in giving the speed of a vehicle meeting a police cruiser. The old type radar could only be used from a stationary position which could be identified after some activity there.

"Of course the 55 mile per hour speed limit has made violators more prevalent on our highways and has done its part in boosting the total of speeding arrests," he concluded.

County Schools Open Friday Will Be Closed On Monday

Due to a change in the School Calendar, Friday, January 24, originally scheduled as a teacher workday will be a regular school day for students. Monday, January 27, is now scheduled as a teacher workday. Students will not attend school on January 27.

The change was necessitated because of closing schools on Tuesday due to weather conditions. The end of the school semester comes on Friday, January 24, and it is best that students work be completed before the teachers have their workday.

The past year also saw continued physical expansion with the opening of a seventh office in the Triangle Shopping Center in Appomattox.

"Added business activity this past year included the adoption by the Board of Directors of the Keogh Self-Employed Retirement Plan. We expect to offer the IRA. Individual Retirement Account Plan, sometime later this year," Cosby said.

"A 1975 milestone is Lynchburg Federal's Golden Anniversary, our fiftieth year of service. While aware of this significant event, we are inspired to regard it as a guidepost to expanded customer service in the future. During the past half-century, Lynchburg Federal has grown in assets from a few thousand to over $75,000,000.00.

I would like to take a moment to express my appreciation," continued Cosby, "for the guidance provided by our directors, the efforts of our officers and staff, and above all, for the patience and loyalty of our customers.

1975, what with varying degrees of inflation and recession, will test the capabilities of our people, growth, and certainly savings and loan industry.

In my judgment, I concluded, "our people emerging from our business postures will do our recollection of the that we have met and severe crisis in the pe can do it again"

Ingredients Used in Baking

Recipes choose high-quality ingredients for home-baked breads. Each ingredient serves a purpose in the mixture, so it is important to use the exact ingredient called for in the recipe.

Flour

The basic ingredient is wheat flour used in several forms, each suited to a particular type of baked product. Much of today's flour is enriched. This means that thiamin, niacin, riboflavin, and iron are added to bring the amount of these nutrients within limits specified by the Federal Government. Calcium and vitamin D may also be added.

Unbleached all-purpose flour - - - is usually sold for home use. It is suitable for most baking. Generally, it is a blend of hard and soft wheat flours, which can be milled entirely from soft wheat.

Bread flour contains sufficient gluten to form an elastic framework that is delicate enough for cakemaking and strong enough for breadmaking.

Cake flour, milled from soft wheat, is lower in protein than pastry flour or all-purpose flour, and usually is bleached. It is very fine and produces tender cakes. It is not suitable for breadmaking.

Self-rising flour is all-purpose flour to which baking powder and salt have been added in the proportion of 1½ teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt to 1 cup of flour. It is convenient for biscuits and other quick breads.

Whole-wheat or graham flour is ground from the whole kernel of wheat and contains all the B-vitamins, minerals, and other nutrients naturally present in wheat.

You can use wholewheat flour in recipes calling for white flour, but it should be stored in a cool place.

Leavening Agents

Any kind of leavening is used to make doughs and batters rise. Yeast, a common leavener, feeds on the sugar in the flour mixture and forms gas bubbles that raise the dough. Yeast needs a warm temperature for growth; too low a temperature slows growth, and too high a temperature kills the yeast.

Yeast comes in two forms - - granular and compressed. Yeast packages usually are dated to assure the user of maximum leavening power.

Baking soda is used when the mixture contains acid ingredients, for example, buttermilk, molasses, chocolate, fruit, or fruit juice. Gas bubbles form in the same way as when baking powder is the leavening agent, but the action is immediate. The leavening effect of baking soda is lost if the product is not baked immediately.

Air in beaten egg whites is the leavening agent in angel-food cake.

Steam leavens the mixture in some quick breads; for example, the cream puffs. Popover batter contains more liquid than most batters.

Fats and Oils

These ingredients (butter, margarine, shortenings, lard and oils) are used to tenderize the product by coating the flour particles or by forming separate layers of fat in the dough.

Hydrogenated fats are oils that are made solid by the addition of hydrogen. Emulsifiers are often added to help keep the fat particles evenly distributed in a mixture. These emulsifiers also help stabilize the batter until it is set by the heat of baking.

Eggs

Several properties of eggs make them useful in baking. Besides adding color, flavor, and nutritive value to baked products, beaten eggs act as leaving agents, and the proteins in eggs coagulate when heated to strengthen the framework of batters and doughs.

Also, eggs are a natural emulsifier. They help to keep fat particles suspended in batters and to maintain smoothness.

Sugar

Sugar not only flavors baked foods but it increases tenderness and volume as well. It helps to brown crusts, too.

Confectioner's sugar is finer granulated sugar and may be used when a finer textured product is desired. Brown sugar imparts its own distinctive flavor and helps keep food moist.

Liquids

Milk, water, and fruit juices are among the liquids used to blend dry ingredients in making doughs and batters. It is the amount of liquid in a mixture that determines whether it is a dough or a batter.

Any mixture thick enough to be rolled or kneaded is called a dough. A mixture that is thin enough to pour or drop from a spoon is known as a batter.

Liquid also serves to moisten the mixture and makes possible the leavening action of baking powder, soda and acid, or the growth of yeast.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Blueberry Sweet Rolls

3¼ to 3½ cups all-purpose flour
1 pkg. active dry yeast
2 5½ -ounce cans (1½ cups) evaporated milk
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoons grated lemon peel
2 cups fresh or frozen blueberries

In large mixer bowl, combine 1½ cups of all-purpose flour and the yeast. In saucepan, heat milk, the first 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ cup sugar and the salt just till warm (115° to 120°), stirring constantly till butter almost melts. Add to dry mixture in mixer bowl; add egg. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for ½ minute, scraping sides of bowl constantly. Beat 3 minutes at high speed. By hand, stir in enough of the remaining flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Place in greased bowl, turning once to coat surface. Cover; let rise till double, about 1½ hours. Punch dough down; divide in half. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. On floured surface, roll each half to a 15-inch rectangle. Brush dough with the melted butter. Combine the ½ sugar, the cinnamon, and lemon peel; sprinkle atop dough. Top with blueberries; press berries lightly into dough. Roll up jelly-roll fashion, starting with long side; seal edge. Cut each roll into 12 slices.

Place in 2 greased 9-inch round pans. Cover and let rise till double, about 30 minutes. Bake in 375° oven for 20 to 25 minutes. While rolls are still warm from the oven, top with a thin powdered sugar glaze. Makes 24 blueberry rolls.
